

APA Style

Quick Reference

The recommendations in this guide are based on the 6th edition (2009) of the APA Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. For more in-depth explanation of formatting and preparing works cited lists, please consult the 6th edition of the APA Publication Manual.

Title Page Layout (APA 41)

Unless you receive other instruction, the first page of your paper is a title page. The following are included on the title page:

- Running head
- Page number
- Title
- Author's name
 - First name, middle initial, last name
 - Multiple authors
 - Each name should appear on a separate line
- Institutional affiliation
- Course title and number followed by date the paper is submitted

Reference Page Layout (APA 49)

The diagram illustrates the layout of an APA reference page. At the top, a blue header bar contains the text "APA 6th" and "Formatting". Below this, a blue bar with the title "Reference Page Layout (APA 49)" is shown. The main content area is a light gray rectangle. At the top left, a vertical orange tab labeled "1" is positioned next to the page title "CLINICAL DECISION-MAKING". At the top right, a vertical orange tab labeled "26" is positioned next to the page number "1". A yellow callout box with a red exclamation mark and the word "NOTE" in red text is located at the top right, stating "References start on a new page." Below the page title, the word "References" is centered. A yellow callout box with a red exclamation mark and the word "NOTE" in red text is located at the bottom left, stating "References are ordered alphabetically by author's surname." A blue arrow points from this note to the first reference entry. The first reference entry is by Ballantyne, A., Spilkin, A., & Trauner, D. (2007). The revision decision: Is change always good? A comparison of CELF-R and CELF-3 test scores in children with language impairment, focal brain damage, and typical development. Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in Schools, 38(3), 182-189. A yellow callout box with a red exclamation mark and the word "NOTE" in red text is located at the bottom right, stating "Periods DO NOT follow URLs at the end of references." A blue arrow points from this note to the URL in the second reference entry. The second reference entry is by Millitant, D. (2006). Read aloud versus shared reading: The effects on vocabulary acquisition, comprehension, and fluency (Unpublished master's thesis). Kean University. (ED491543). Retrieved from <http://www.eric.ed.gov/>

Periods DO NOT follow URLs at the end of references.

Italicizing Titles

Knowing when to italicize a title within your reference page can be confusing, especially when two titles are present within the same citation, for instance, an article title and a journal title. A simple technique for remembering which element to italicize is to think of the titles as being in a “parent – child” relationship, one title (the parent) is over the other title (the child). The “parent” title is italicized; the “child” title is not. For example, an article (child) appears within a journal (parent); the article is a part of a larger entity. Therefore, the journal title is italicized, but the article title is not.

CHILD (No Italics)	PARENT (Italics)
No child present	Work title
Book chapter title	Book title
Article title	Journal title
Journal issue number	Journal volume number
Web page title	Web site title

The same method applies if a work is a part of a series or compilation, with the work (child) being secondary to the series (parent). If a work is not a part of a series or compilation, italicize the work title.

Depending on the format of the reference source, there are variations in how the reference is listed. It is often best to model your citation after an example. This guide is organized by format (i.e. “Books”) and then medium of the format (i.e. Electronic). Identify the kind of source that you have used (book, periodical, chapter, web site, etc.) and find a similar example below. Mirror the example with your specific information.

Book Citation - General Format

Author(s). (Date of Publication). Title of book. Location of Publisher: Publisher.

Location of the Publisher

Give the city and state or, if the location is outside of the United States, the city and name of the country should be included. Do not abbreviate the name of the country.

For U.S. cities, the two letter postal abbreviation for the state should be used.

Book - Single Author

Meyer, S. (2007). Eclipse. New York, NY: Little, Brown and Company.

CITATION
EXAMPLE

The third book in the series starts out where the second left off. Bella states,
“With ice in my heart, I watched him prepare to defend me” (Meyer, 2007, p.1).

In Text
EXAMPLE

Book - Two Authors

Marzano, R. J., & Marzano, J. S. (1988). A cluster approach to elementary vocabulary instruction. Newark, DE: International Reading Association.

CITATION
EXAMPLE

Note: The in-text citation uses the word “and” between the authors’ names when used as part of the sentence.

In the reference list an ampersand is used between the next-to-last and last authors’ names within a citation.

Marzano and Marzano (1988) began their study of vocabulary instruction in three elementary classrooms.

In Text
EXAMPLE

When the source is noted in text, within parentheses at the end of a sentence, the ampersand is used, in the same way as the citation on a reference page.

Three different elementary classrooms were targeted as part of the initial study on vocabulary instruction (Marzano & Marzano, 1988).

In Text
EXAMPLE

Book - Multiple Authors

List authors' names in the order listed on the title page.

Gagliano, A., Zielke, A. L., Wagner, E., & Kerr, D. J. (2009). How to build an elevator. Chicago, IL: Construction Press.

CITATION

Sander, M. R., Downer, J. L., Quist, A. L., Platmann, L., Lucas, C. L., Cline, J. K., & Campbell, D. R. (2004). Doing research in the university library. Chicago, IL: Corbin Press.

CITATION
EXAMPLE

Three to five authors, first time the source is cited:

Very explicit instructions with accompanying photos help the inexperienced technician begin the building process (Gagliano, Zielke, Wagner, & Kerr, 2009).

In Text
EXAMPLE

For three to five authors, in subsequent citations, use only the first author's name followed by "et al." in the phrase or in parentheses.

As advised by Gagliano et al. (2009), special attention should be taken to do all steps in the process, including testing hardware for durability.

In Text
EXAMPLE

For six or more authors, for first and subsequent citations, use the first author's name followed by "et al.":

The research process begins with a very broad overview of material that relates in various ways to the chosen topic (Sander et al., 2004).

Book, No Author or Editor

When there is no author or editor listed for the publication, the title of the book or article moves into the author position. Do not use Anonymous as the author, unless Anonymous is specifically listed as the author.

Basic history of immigration. (2009). San Francisco: Migration Press.

CITATION
EXAMPLE

In a parenthetical reference, the full title (if brief) or a shortened version precedes the year and page number. When abbreviating the title, begin with the word by which it is alphabetized.

The development of nativist sentiment and the restrictive immigration laws that followed in the 19th century tell a complex story steeped in the fear of the unknown (Basic history, 2009).

Secondary Sources

A secondary source is a book chapter, article or other document that refers to or relates to information that was previously presented in another document. For example, author Phelps refers to research done by Hambleton and Slatter and uses their findings to support his research. The book authored by Phelps is considered a secondary source. The secondary source, not the primary source, is included on the Reference page because that is the source that was viewed.

Phelps, R. P. (2005). Defending standardized testing. Mahwah, NJ: Lawrence Erlbaum Assoc.

CITATION
EXAMPLE

In text, the original work is named and citation given is for the secondary source.

Research completed by Hambleton and Slatter (as cited in Phelps, 2005) found that educators made fundamental mistakes when interpreting test results.

Major Classical Works (APA 179)

Reference list entries are not required for major classical works, such as ancient Greek and Roman works or classical religious works.

The first time a citation is used in text, identify the version of the work that you are using. For subsequent citations, the version is not required. Classical works are usually divided or sectioned similarly in all editions; rather than page numbers, use these numbers to identify specific parts of your source. (APA p. 179, #6.18)

Psalm 23 (New Revised Standard Edition) portrays God as a shepherd caring for his flocks.

Specific guidelines are outlined for physical preparation for prayer (Qur'an 5:5).

Personal Communications

Unpublished interviews do not need a reference page entry because APA considers them “personal communications”. They do not contain “recoverable data.” Other forms of personal communication include private letters, phone conversations, memos, e-mail or messages from non-archived discussion groups, etc. Because the content cannot be recovered, there is no need to include them in the reference list. Give the initials and surname of the individual and provide a date when the interchange took place.
